Earth Trek offers up VGA webcam with 2-port USB hub

It is not often you find a camera are many, but Earth Trek's camera is like that. Referred to as "the most popular camera," the world had never seen (ah, no), the unit of a package 1,300,000 pixel camera, the ability to capture VGA, AF / automatic brightness and a real kick , A 2-port USB hub.

Perhaps still a ripoff price of 45 dollars, but if you need the extra peripheral port bad enough, to know who you are willing to do so. VGA webcam

Nokia Gold Arte 8800 says "gold is not enough"

You probably weren't expecting yet another indulgence possibility of Nokia's long 8800 fashionphone, right? Well, the pharma continues to prove its faithfulness to the crazily valuable mortal with its stylish model, the Yellow Arte.

This artful youth is unfit in 18-carat yellowness and has human calfskin on the face and body -- honorable in countersuit the yellowness wasn't enough to affirm its owners are beingness on the bound of offensive ostentation.

Other than its looks, you can reckon the fashionable 8800 to be colloquialism much isotropic to its Radiocarbon Arte predecessor, with 3G, 4GB of glint memory, an OLED show and a 3.2 megapixel camera. We don't agnise exactly when it's slated for wares in Europe, but we reckon it to transfer a bad "impressive" valuation tag.

Nokia patent app suggests N97's form factor isn't complicated enough

With a large screen and keyboard in a portable package is a challenge to mobile phone manufacturers are always doomed to try to solve this problem led to the flow of (mostly funny) patent applications in the form of ridiculous, would never see the light of day.

This is what we think - well, we hope - Nokia's n97 latest application to play a role, the combination of portrait-oriented QWERTY keyboard with a wide range of shows that I do not know the back of the rotation's phone number, you only need a little bit of screen real estate. Discount software

Look cool on paper, but in fact, we believe that this will be the most clumsy Frankenstein's MPX mobile phone connection, as it is ever produced. Sliding tilt the N97 looks pretty good players. Seriously. Mobile Software.

eStarling's ImpactV digiframe does video, WiFi, handstands

It usually takes a lot of us off the digiframe - after all, there are so many and they are very precise to do the same thing. This means that the new eStarling from ImpactV does not seem to be too shabby.

Of course, we can see some of these features of the previous model (for example, an 8-inch screen, wireless, to send the picture frame, photo scheduling, as well as the RSS), but the quality of DVD video playback (up to 4 minutes), since iPhone set of applications, Photobucket's search and YouTube, Facebook and the support is very interesting.

The retail price of 199 dollars, public relations, we may receive a little stretching things when they call it "an exciting evolution of the furniture", but OK. They probably never seen RoboStool.

AMD Phenom II processor gets outed, might even be released

Clearly, AMD has officially announced the launch of the Phenom II processor - though if they do, they forget that fact, you know, it announced. According to EE Times, the quad-core, 45nm chip is said to support the DDR2 and DDR 3 memory (the latter up to 1333), available at the speed of 2.8GHz and 3GHz (275 U.S. dollars and 235 U.S. dollars, respectively).

If this is not exciting is that the 65 nanometer (DDR2's) version of the chip is also the time to obtain. This article by the wind, said the chip is expected to appear in the system on display at the upcoming Consumer Electronics Show. Sound good?

Now, all we need is practical, making a formal announcement. , From the chip maker itself. We are looking for you, AMD's. We call. Do you have numbers.
